Caregivers are the key source of support for the patient and can influence how patients both adapt and cope with their illness, treatment and recovery.

For these reasons, it seems clear that the better you equip yourself for the road ahead, the more your loved one will benefit.

- Join us in a relaxed environment, which will promote an honest and open exchange about caregiving for patients both pre and post transplant
- Talk about how roles and responsibilities in the family have changed
- Find support and encouragement from others going through the transplant experience
- Develop more effective coping strategies along the way

Caregivers bear a huge responsibility. Our aim is to help share that load. For more information, contact Adline Warwick-Thompson, Social Work Intern, at 212-305-1884.

Kindly RSVP if you plan to attend.
